

As part of our Faculty Writing Initiative, the Office of The Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs announces a new
Rutgers Faculty Writing Bootcamp.

This four-week intensive program begins June 6 and features:

- 5 workshops
- 10 virtual writing sessions
- 4 peer writing accountability groups

Workshops will be led by senior editors and writing professionals and zero in on common faculty challenges, from project-mapping to writer's block, from productivity to common writing pitfalls to grammar and style. Our team of experts will offer guidelines for turning your dissertation into a book, writing a compelling abstract (for humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences), plus the importance of the opening sentence.

- Workshops and virtual Write-On Sites will be held Monday-Thursday from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.
- All sessions will be virtual, with option to attend finale in person (with lunch).
- Faculty nominations (by chair or dean) accepted through May 31.
- Nominated faculty will receive registration link with details.
- Faculty members must commit to attend all sessions.
- Participants will receive a certificate upon completion.
- The bootcamp program is free to Rutgers faculty members.

FACULTY WRITING BOOTCAMP

BEGINNING JUNE 6TH

Workshops are led by senior editors and writing professionals and zero in on common faculty challenges, from project-mapping to writer's block, from productivity to grammar and style. Our team of experts will offer guidelines for turning your dissertation into a book, writing a compelling abstract, and much more.

THIS IS A FOUR-WEEK WRITING INTENSIVE FEATURING:

5 WORKSHOPS

10 WRITING
SESSIONS

4 PEER
ACCOUNTABILITY
SESSIONS

Each week includes four separate sessions over four days: one morning workshop (9 a.m. to 11 a.m.); two morning writing sessions (9 a.m. to 11 a.m.), and one 60-minute accountability meeting with peers (time and day determined by group).

Faculty Writing Initiative

Sponsored by The Office Of The Executive Vice President For Academic Affairs.

NOMINATION PROCESS

Admission to the Rutgers Faculty Writing Bootcamp is by nomination only.

Nominations from a candidate's chair or dean must be emailed to Teresa Politano (tpolitano@oq.rutgers.edu) or Karen McCarthy (km724@oq.rutgers.edu) by May 31, 2022. Nominations should be brief and should include the faculty member's name, rank/position, department, school/unit, and email address. Upon nomination, the candidate will receive a link to register and must commit to attending all sessions.