Join us for a conversation on the shifting manifestations of global anti-Blackness. Beyond the explicit violence of slavery and segregation, how does contemporary anti-Blackness pervade our everyday lives in ways so insidious that it can even be practiced unwittingly by its victims? Spanning the psychosocial to the economic, this dialogue marks the start of Insurgent Intersections' yearlong exploration of the multifarious ways in which global anti-Blackness is operationalized today.

Insurgent Intersections: Combating Global Anti-Blackness is a multi-year project exploring how Africana Studies scholarship, arts, and activism inform global, intersectional struggles against anti-Blackness. Insurgent Intersections is hosted by the Department of Africana Studies at Rutgers University - New Brunswick. Insurgent Intersections is supported by a faculty grant from the Institute for the Study of Global Racial Justice.
